Economic & Educational Dimensions of the Sustainability Agenda

Facilitator: Dr. Bob Eckhart

The goals we set ourselves in the future need to harmonise with the tools we use to inform people of their importance, and the building blocks we use to create this path. This course will focus on the ways in which Economic and Educational sectors can align and function with sustainability goals, particularly in relation to the global sustainability agenda.

This will be achieved with a dynamic panel presentation evaluating the degree to which these sectors have aligned with global sustainability. A further focus on the 16th sustainable development goal will follow, with an examination both on its influence on educational institutions and its relevance to nuclear deterrence. Participants will also be given time to focus on interdisciplinary insights from their own backgrounds, which can reinforce and enrich their experience.

Bob Eckhart is currently serving as a Fulbright Scholar at the Pedagogical State University "Ion Creanga" in Moldova. He is teaching courses in communicative competence and researching the impact of social media/YouTube on language acquisition.

In the 2019-20 academic year, Bob was a Guest Lecturer at the Sorbonne-Nouvelle (U of Paris III) and a visiting instructor at Xidian University and Hunan Agricultural University. He has also completed two other Fulbright grants in Belarusian universities.
